QUITS WATERWORKS

J. H. MARTIN RESIGNS AS SUPERINTENDENT AND MANAGER.

IS ACCEPTED BY BOARD

"Just Wanted to Quit," Is Only Reason Given — Has Other Plans For the Future.

J. H. Martin, superintendent and manager of the water works department tendered his resignation of the position to the board of public works last night. The resignation was accepted.

"I just wanted to quit," said Mr. Martin, when asked this morning why he had decided to sever his connection with the department. "There was no friction, so far as I know, and relations have been pleasant. I have tried to give efficient service and have endeavored to see that the city was supplied with a sufficient quantity of water of as good quality as possible."

Asked as to his future plans Mr. Martin said that he had several things in view and would later make a definite decision. The board has as yet made no appointment of a successor.

Mr. Martin has been in charge of the city water department for the past three years and will continue temporarily in charge until a new superintendent is named.

TO GIVE BENEFIT CONCERT

Local Talent Will Furnish Program At Christian Church Afternoon of October 14.

An excellent program has been arranged by those giving the benefit concert for the soldiers' Christmas fund next Sunday afternoon, October 14, at the Christian church at 3 o'clock.

A pipe organ and piano duet will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eversole. Mr. Eversole will also give an organ number; a piano selection will be played by Miss Carrie Margaret Baker; a vocal duet by Mrs. F. P. Robinson and the Rev. Gilbert S. Cox, and vocal solos by Mrs. F. M. Townsend, William Nielsen and the Rev. Mr. Cox will conclude the program.

No admission will be charged but a silver offering will be taken at the concert.

WEARS A $500 OVERCOAT

J. F. Montgomery Has Handsome Garment of Beaver Skins Presented By Western Friend.

Hamlet, who said, "let the devil wear black, for I'll have a suit of sables," has nothing on J. F. Montgomery, clothing dealer, who will defy winter winds clothed in an overcoat of the finest beaver skins, the value of which is around $500. The pelts were given Mr. Montgomery by a friend in the West who secured them from the Indians of Wyoming, a score or more of pelts being used in the coat which was made up by a Chicago fur house.

The broad collar of the long coat is made of pelts of young beavers which are of a lighter shade than those that are in the body of the garment, with shades blended so nicely that not a seam is visible. It is one of the handsomest and most costly garments ever seen here.

A COUNCIL MEETING TONIGHT

Report on New Sidewalks to Be Built, Following Orders Made, Will Be Heard.

The regular monthly meeting of the city council will be held tonight. The matter of special importance will be a report on the building of sidewalks abutting property where owners have been notified that walks were necessary. Ordinances covering a number of specific cases have been published and it is likely recommendations for other walks will be made

A LETTER FROM H. W. WHITE

Made the Trip From Camp Clark to Camp Doniphan in A Car—Writes Of His Experiences.

H. Wilfred White with headquarters company 139th Infantry of the Fourth Missouri Regiment is now at Camp Doniphan, at Fort Sill Okla. In a letter to this paper he writes as follows:

"I made the trip from Camp Clark Nevada, to Camp Doniphan, in a car and it was some trip. There were some awful good roads and some bad ones. The roads were good until we got to Oklahoma City. There we were caught in a rain. We crossed the Canadian river about ten miles north of Oklahoma City and the bottom roads were awful. We drove twenty-one miles on roads with weeds and bushes dragging on both sides of the car and right through a wilderness. Some time the water was over the running board of the car three inches deep. After we got out of there we hit a prairie and we drove two hours without seeing a house, fence or tree, just a path wide enough for each wheel. Some experience I must say. Saw a number of jackrabbits. We took our dinner at the 101 Ranch, Miller Brothers, and they treated us royally. The Indians there were having a feast as it was a holiday for them. It was very interesting to watch them in dancing and motions I never saw before. At Apache City there was a bunch of Indian squaws with papooses on their backs. We wanted a picture but as soon as they saw our camera they turned around. They are very suspicious, but we got our pictures. In about 10 minutes here came the biggest buck Indian I ever saw and he was madder than a hornet. He wanted us to pay him but we talked him out of it.

"Camp Doniphan is a good place. The Wichita mountains are five miles north of us. This reservation covers 52,000 acres and there are over 75,000 men here now.

"Air ships are sure thick. I counted eleven up at one time and one balloon. They have 115 air ships here. One goes to Fort Riley and one to Fort Houston every morning after mail. They average better than 100 miles per hour.

"We killed a big rattlesnake which had twelve rattlers, this morning in our bath house."

$130 TO CHRISTMAS FUND

Barbecue Committee Turns Over Sum Collected to Maryville Surgical Dressings Units.

The fund that is being collected by the ladies of the Surgical units has been augmented by the addition of $130 which has been turned over to them by the barbecue finance committee. $126 of the amount represents the voluntary offerings made by the crowd at the time of the farewell barbecue, with smaller amounts having been added since that time.

The ladies will put it into the "Christmas boxes" fund which will be expended in articles for the soldier boys who are serving in the army and navy.

GET ADDRESSES CORRECT

Thousands of Letters Are Piling Up At Camp Funston For Lack of Proper Addresses.

Letters to Nodaway county boys at Camp Funston must be correctly addressed if they are to reach them promptly. The post office department advises that thousands of letters are piling up in the office at the Camp because they are insufficiently addressed, and many men are being disappointed daily because the letters have not arrived.

A statement has been issued by Captain Harry Howland, assistant chief of staff, asking that all addresses be written plainly and legibly; the names be spelled correctly; the first name given in full, if possible; the designation of the company or battery given where known, and the number of the regiment. Where the number of the company and regiment is not known the county and state from which the soldier came should be stated.

Mrs. B. R. Martin, who has been visiting in Maryville with Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Martin, and Dr. and Mrs. C. V. Martin, returned yesterday to her home in St. Joseph.

MEN CROWD 'Y' HUTS

OUR AMERICANS AT FRENCH FRONT SEEK DIVERSION.

THE "BLUES" LACKING

They are Short on Uplift but Long on Americanism, Young with the Youth of New Country.

(By Arthur Gleason)

(For the last week the writer has been with the American Army where it is nearest the front. He has eaten mess, watched the gas practice, and generally lived with this section of the army in each one of the villages where it is billeted).

The men who came first are now here, well up toward the front, doing their bit in learning how to kill. It would be easy to write general talk about these many men of many nationalities from all the states. One would then say that unfatigued youth is in their walk, in their eyes, in their speech. They fill the villages with their slang and swing. They boost the prices till dinner in a simple country village costs $1. A tiny room, two flights up and cover a stable, costs 80 cents. A pair of leather gaiters, worth from $5 to $7, costs $14. But our soldiers "shell out" good naturedly, play baseball, throw hand grenades, sing "Keep the Home Fires Burning" and eat three good meals a day with delicious white bread on the side.

The trail of white bread left by our army is the outstanding feature of the American invasion. Little Charlot, twelve years old, dressed in the uniform of the French Twenty-fifth, is leader of the peasant children, who bring the mess around, and pick up, not the crumbs, but the slices that fall from the tins of our soldiers. Flaky, billowy white bread, what a comfort to the stomach that has grown sour on the browns of England and France! I believe that this war will be won by American white bread.

The Record of Minnesota Danes.

But to come to cases. It is more convincing to tell of individual men I have met in this brave little advance army. I have met the eighteen year old boy, whom we will call Bernard Beck, a private, a Dane. He comes from Tyler, Minn. This is a village in Lincoln county, in the southwest corner of the state. It has a population of 700, and on the first call for volunteers (long before conscription) it responded with 41 men, of whom 22 are Danes.

"You Tyler people are good Americans," I said to Beck.

"We had one fellow," he answered, "who talked up for the Germans, but he had to leave town."

He pulled from his pocket a list of his friends who had volunteered from the village. There was Joseph Vadheim and Clinton Eriksen, of Norwegian descent; William Schnell and William Reitz, German; Charles Glynn and George Donovan, Irish; Carl Ollson, Swede; John Ferguson, Scotch, and the rest all Danes. Seventy per cent of the village is of Danish descent, so Beck told me, and all good Americans.

Then there is Private Daniel Sandors, from Homestead, Penn. His father was a Hungarian.

"You don't find any holes in that arm, do you?" he asked, baring the forearm, bicep and tricep.

YOUR HELP NEEDED

HOW THE SECOND LIBERTY LOAN MONEY WILL BE SPENT.

TIME TO PROVE LOYALTY

Nodaway County Will Do Its "Bit" in Subscribing to the Great War Fund Being Raised.

Why the Second Liberty Loan, a campaign for which was opened October 1? This question has been and is raised by many persons who have been approached relative to subscribing for bonds.

The Second Liberty Loan campaign for the sale of $3,000,000,000 worth of bonds is for the purpose of creating a fund to equip with arms, clothing and food all our soldiers who have been called to the field. The task of equipping our army is one of greater magnitude than any ever attempted by the self-reliant citizens of the United States.

Money is needed to maintain our navy and our sailors, your boys, upon the high seas. A part of the Second Liberty Loan will go to this purpose.

Funds are also needed to provide the necessary means to pay the wages of our soldiers and sailors, and, if the bill now pending in Congress passes, the monthly allowances for the support of their dependent families and to supply them with life insurance. Perhaps this comes more closely into the horizon of most people than the other phases, which are removed, but there is no one who does not see every day the need for help for the dependent families of the boys who have volunteered or been drafted.

In order to properly care for the great American armies in Europe, ships are badly needed and a section of the loan will be set aside for the use in constructing a fleet of merchant vessels to maintain the line of communication with our brave troops in France, and to keep our commerce afloat upon the high seas in defiance of the German Kaiser and his submarines.

It is also necessary for this country to begin from the ground up to build and organize an aeroplane fleet which will give complete supremacy in the air to the United States and to the nations fighting with us against the German Military menace. There are other numerous war purposes to which the loan will be turned.

Every person in Nodaway county can do his bit in the great war. It may be circulating literature advertising the loan. It may be to go to the front. It may be to subscribe to the fund. Those who do not have to go to the front should rally to the aid of the boys by helping at home.

Posters stickers for windshields and other information and publicity features may be obtained at the Commercial Club rooms.

Joseph Jackson, Jr., cashier of the First National Bank, is chairman in charge of the work in Nodaway county having been appointed by the Federal Reserve Bank at Kansas City. Other organizations such as the Nodaway County Council of Defense, Commercial Club, and the banks of the county are co-operating to put across a campaign which will give this county the proper place in the big war fund.

TO DIRECT CHURCH CHOIR

Music At First Methodist Church Will Be in Charge of Marcus T. Nielsen and Miss Willetta Kittell.

Beginning with the services on Sunday morning the music at the First Methodist Episcopal church will be in charge of Marcus T. Nielsen and Miss Willetta Kittell, both of the Maryville Conservatory of Music. Mr. Nielsen will direct the choir at rehearsals and will lead the singing; Miss Kittell will be organ accompanist. It is learned that some of the best vocal talent in the church will compose the choir and plans are already being discussed for a series of Sunday evening musical services during the fall and winter season.

ANOTHER LIST SENT IN?

According to Word Received Here, Boys in Third Contingent Prepared Petition to Board.

A petition signed by a number of the boys in the third contingent which left Maryville Wednesday afternoon for Camp Funston appealing to the district board at Kansas City to reexamine a number of men who were rejected by the local board on account of physical defects will be sent to Kansas City, according to a card received by the local board this morning.

The card is from Roland Tabler and David Lehmer. They write as follows:

"We signed a paper down here to see that a certain bunch of boys be re-examined, but have decided that this was not justice so we ask you to take our names off. We could not have been treated any better than our home folks did."

There have been rumors for some time that several boys had gone to Kansas City with a list of names of persons during the past few weeks.

The local board received this morning word from Camp Funston that the entire second contingent of eighty-three men had passed and finally been credited to Nodaway county's quota.

Ward J. Linninger of Maryville who was temporarily rejected when he took his physical examination several days ago was re-examined this morning and was accepted. Linninger registered in Peublo county, Colo., but since that time has moved to Maryville and his examination was transferred here.

BELLE GROVE SHOWS HOW

Class in Vitalized Agriculture in A Demonstration Before Large Crowd Last Night.

The class in agriculture at Belle Grove school last night gave a demonstration of the work they have been doing, following the new line of study that has been introduced in five rural schools of the county, in which the classes make the actual experiments in the fields and gardens, depending only upon text books for reference. As was the case at Glendale, Lasher and Elm Grove, when similar demonstrations were given, many of the patrons of the school district were present to see the class at work. All who were there declared the new method of study had many advantages over the old and expressed the desire that it be included regularly in the school course.

It is proposed next year to have a larger number of rural schools take up the new method of vitalized agriculture, the demonstrations this year limited to five schools for the purpose of familiarizing teachers, pupils and school patrons with what is expected to be accomplished.

Miss Eva Whitehead is teacher at Belle Grove and the class in vitalized agriculture gave evidence of the practical value of study under the new system.

HOLD A RED CROSS MEETING

Conference Monday at St. Joseph Calls Representative From Every Chapter in District.

Representatives of every Red Cross chapter in northwest Missouri have been called to meet Monday at St. Joseph when a conference will be held, taking up the needs and the work that must be done throughout the district. Geo. R. Robinson, director of the southwestern district will be in attendance and will take part in the conference. Dr. F. R. Anthony will represent the Maryville chapter at the conference.

THE RED CROSS MAGAZINE

Subscribers by Millions Swamped the Publishers, but They're Being Mailed Now.

Subscribers to the Red Cross fund in Maryville and throughout the county are flooding the local chapter with complaints, asking why the Red Cross magazine has not been received, pointing out that with subscriptions having been made in June, copies are not yet at hand.

In explanation, the information comes to the local chapter that the immense volume of business that has come from Red Cross subscribers for the past four months has swamped the headquarters offices. When the nation-wide campaign for funds was started endless lists of names began to pour into the offices and orders were sent to every chapter in the country to hold all subscriptions and money until detailed plans might be worked out to handle the unexpected quantity of business systematically. It has taken four months hard work to do this and subscribers all over the United States are just in receipt of their first number of the magaine. The publishers announce that they hope to have all names on the mailing lists before the end of October. The Red Cross magazine will have the largest circulation by far of any periodical published in the world.

The Maryville chapter board is also besieged with requests from organizations in the county for permission to organize auxiliary chapters. It is learned that in at least two instances reports have not been made to the Maryville chapter of money collected and names sent in. Until this is done no authority may be given to organize. All money collected must go through the Maryville chapter, otherwise no membership can be credited.

$1 DAMAGES, JURY VERDICT

Out Only Short Time in Case of Clyde McMillen Against Mrs. Henry Weber—Third Weber Case On.

The third Weber case, the title being Clyde McMillen against Henry Weber for libel, commenced this afternoon after the jury had gone out in the case of Clyde McMillen against Mrs. Henry Weber for libel. The jury after remaining out a short time returned with a verdict for the defendant, and awarded damages in the sum of $1.

McMillen is suing for $10,000 actual and $10,000 punitive damages against Weber. The petition alleges that Weber wrote of the plaintiff: "He forged my name to checks for the amount of over $200, kept from two to four horses in my barn and stole my feed to feed them."

The jury in this case is composed of R. J. Holmes, Brice Wilson, George Wray, Henry Wagner, Jonas Brown, H. L. Hornbuckle, M. J. Dougan, Humphrey Lyle, Noah Sipes, C. B. Leach, C. P. Anderson, S. A. Montgomery.

A GREAT VICTORY FOR HAIG'S ARMY

BRITISH NOW COMMAND FAMOUS PASSCHENDAELE RIDGE.

ALL OBJECTIVES TAKEN --TAKE 3000 PRISONERS

Each Drive Brings Britons Nearer to Complete Occupation of Gateway to Great Flanders Plain.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

London, Oct. 5.—The positions that were so brilliantly captured on the west Flanders front by the British yesterday were heavily shelled last night by the Germans, the war office announced today. The Germans however did not continue their counter attacks, the report added. Under the shell fire of the Germans the British worked desperately in strengthening and consolidating the newly won trenches. German raids were made in the Gouseau court sector, but all were repulsed.

After months of bloody fighting in Belgium the British today dominate the greater part of the famous Passchendaele Ridge, smashing the German grip in one of the most important victories of the war. Tanks and airplanes played a most important part in the battles.

A tremendous barrage preceded the infantry into the enemy country, leaving a trail of death and devastation behind it. As this terrifying deluge broke over the German lines, groups of the enemy rushed forward in many places and raised their hands in token of surrender. Prisoners were coming in much more rapidly and in greater numbers than in the last push.

Gateway to Great Plains.

For nearly three years—up to the beginning of the battle of Flanders, July 31—the enemy had sat in his strongholds along the crest of this elevation and defied the British armies to dislodge him. It has been a tremendously strong position, but the last weeks of bitter fighting have shown that it is not invulnerable. Bit by bit the dogged British wrested the lower reaches of the ridge from the invaders. Each thrust brought them nearer to the complete occupation of this gateway to the rolling plains of Flanders.

Tower Hamlets, Inverness Copse, Glencorse Wood, Polygon Wood and numerous other positions which formed part of the Passchendaele-Gheluvelt chain on its southern end have been torn from the bitterly resisting of the enemy and have been held in the face of determined counter attacks. Today, the British were again reaching out for more of these crucial points.

UNFALTERING.

In an increasing number of homes in Nodaway county the war is reaching down into the very hearts of men and women. At first the war was "away over there." Shells were bursting, poisonous gases were stealing along the ground, men were dying, all of the horror of it was "somewhere in France."

But this morning—as has happened on other mornings, too—many a mother in Maryville got up in the gray dawn and stole into a vacant room, and sat down on the edge of an empty bed, and smoothed with her palm the linen of a pillow that had not been slept on, for the boy who used to sleep there was away off somewhere out in Kansas bowling along on the first leg of the journey that is to bring those three words, "somewhere in France," very close to her and to us all hereafter. For these are the boys we watched learning to creep, and then learning to talk and to walk; and we followed them to school and to work; and now they are answering the country's call. And while we are proud, it isn't easy to see them go.

It isn't easy, but the mothers and fathers and sisters and sweethearts of the boys who went yesterday, and have gone other days, have this to console them and to bear them up; that they go "that this Nation, under God, shall have a new birth of free-"dom; and that government of the "people, by the people, for the peo-"ple, shall not perish from the earth."

And so, with the knowledge that these young men, our very own, are going to perform that sacred duty, we who are left behind are also going to perform ours, in bearing our share of the sacrifice. Many a tear in the silent watches of the night, of course, and many a prayer that the God of battles will bring them safely home again, but to the world a brave and unwhimpering front, as becomes American fathers and mothers of sons who, "when duty calls or danger, are never lacking there."

(With apologies to the Kansas City Star).

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young — to do this you must watch your liver and bowels — there's no need of having a sallow complexion — dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face — dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Women In The War

By G. KAY SPENCER

Mary Goloubyova.

The sun has suddenly shot up from the Siberian plains and begins its work of dispersing a murky fog from the Baltic, blanketing the city of Petrograd.

The streets of the capital are deserted with the exception of the military trains rumbling through on their way to and from the various field headquarters.

As the city awakens and bestirs itself the shrilling of whistles resounds through the barracks on Torgvaya street. N. C. O.'s soon have the women of the "Death Command" prepared for inspection.

If they find it difficult to keep an alignment when ordered to "Attention" we might find the cause in the fact that they have endeavored to find sleep on rough boards with no blankets. There is no time to inure the girls gradually to hardships, so a Spartan regime is imposed from the first, and the weak are immediately eliminated by the method. And the smallest breach of discipline brings expulsion in disgrace.

Two weeks before this particular inspection one, Mary Goloubyova, an erstwhile blue-eyed, blonde-haired high school girl, had had a little conversation with her old white-haired mother. She stunned her with something like this:

"My mother, Mademoiselle Butchkareff is in from the front. She recruits women before the Kazab Cathedral. The bulletins at the War Office, show our men still are forced back, so I enlisted to serve Russian."

That mother encouraged her daughter.

She had encouraged the girl's father.

She had encouraged herself when the husband and father was reported killed at Przemysl.

The daughter left for training — and three days later her mother, brave to the end, succumbed to the overwhelming burden of sorrow oppressing her.

The daughter, stern in that melancholy romanticism so typical of the Russian, steeled herself to render full duty to Russia.

Her battalion left for the front on a sickly day in July, when even the sun shone unpleasantly and the factory dust held close to the streets and eddied on the corners under stray gusts of air.

The religious services at the Cathedral were received in silence by thousands of bowed, short-cropped heads, every one busy with thoughts wandering from the liturgies to scenes of home and brown Russian fields.

Opportune or inopportune was the hour they arrived at the front; that is according to the perspective. But arrive they did, and were immediately assigned their portion of the defense line—for sedition and corruption were rife in the army, and men—or women—who would fight, were, indeed, a godsend to the sorely perplexed and disgusted major officers.

In three days Mary Goloubyova was registered at the base hospital with several pounds of German steel in various parts of her anatomy. She had been full tilt on her way into a German trench when a careless Hun dropped a grenade so near that she received the full discharge. She retaliated by being the first of the "Death Legion" to kill a German. She did not immediately realize she had been hit and continued in her course. All the Germans were not going south, and one unlucky Boche engaged her with his bayonet. She parried his stroke and lunged under his guard with her full strength. As her blade crisped through his back she also fired.

She had an interesting story to relate of the treachery of a wounded German officer. On a trip over newly-captured ground she noted an enemy officer apparently wounded and helpless. She went to comfort him when he jumped to his knees and pulled out his revolver—but that's the farthest he got, for her own gun found a conclusion to the argument in her favor.

As she lies on her little white cot she sometimes toys with a little bag on a string at her neck. If you notice it she will return the glance and quizzically explain its purpose. It carries cynaide of potassium. All the members of the "Death Legion" carry similar bags in order to avert a fate worse than death if captured.

She is a tense little body, and healthy. Her wounds are mending rapidly.

She is going back to the front.

A ROOKIE'S IDEA SHIFTS

Camp Life As Private and Officer Differs — An Enthusiast Now.

"The song of the homesick rookie," an unusually meritorious piece of verse is by Corporal Gordon Case, of the 8th Field Artillery. Young Case, who is well known here is a friend and chum of Hallie Ford, of Maryville. Case has just completed his course in artillery instruction in the School of Fire at Fort Sill, and is spending a short furlough with his mother at Kansas City, says the Manualite, from which paper the "song" is reprinted.

The Song of the Homesick Rookie.

I'm just sittin' here a-thinkin' of the things I left behind—
Say, I'd hate to put on paper what's been runnin' through my mind.
We've dug a million trenches, we've scoured the country round—
A meaner life this side o' hell I know could not be found.
But still there's consolation—attention
while I tell—
When we die we're bound for heaven for we've done our bit in hell.

We've scrubbed a million kitchens, so the cooks could stew our beans.
We've stood a hundred reveilles and cleaned the camp latrines.
We've washed a million mess kits and peeled a million spuds.
We've rolled a million blanket rolls and washed a million duds.
The number of parades we've made
'tis very hard to tell,
But we'll not parade in heaven for we've done our bit in hell.

When final taps are sounded and we lay away life's cares,
And we do that last parade up those shinin' golden stairs,
And the angels bid us welcome and the harps begin to play,
And we draw a dozen canteen checks
and spend them in a day,
Then you'll hear St. Peter tell us with a loud, ear-splittin' yell—
"Hey! take a front seat, there, boys—you've done your bit in hell!"

BURYING THE SOLDIER-DEAD

Bodies Recovered Under the Glare of the Trench Lights as Cannons Roar.

(From a French Lieutenant's dairy, in the Atlantic).

March 23.—Last night I was detailed with half my section to bury the dead. The task was not a pleasant one, but it was accomplished without reluctance or hesitation. Having to do the work at night made it a shade more lugubrious. A guide conducted us to a little thicket all laid bare by grapeshot, to the south of Perthes and about three kilometers from the first lines. There was no moon, and it was very nearly pitch dark. Trench rockets streaked the sky here and there, and from the distance came the crack of musketry. Shells went laboring by with the heavy breathing of wild beasts in a rage. A little trench was made into a large one to receive the bodies, and then we had to set out in search of them. They had been lying there for a very long time, and it was only the recent advance of our lines that made is possible to bury them. With some difficulty we managed to make out these motionless heaps on the ground. It was necessary to search the pockets and take out papers, money, etc., also to unfasten the identification badges that are worn on the arm like a bracelet. It was not an easy thing to do. In this, also, I was obliged to set the example. I had to put my gloved hand into the pockets of a foul mass that fell to pieces at a touch. I found nothing but a pocketbook and dairy. The men took courage and overcame their aversion.

When our task was finished, the abbe-infirmier who had accompanied us of his own accord, stepped to the edge of the grave and said a blessing. And that priest standing out against the darkness, lifting his voice above the noise of battle in a last solemn duty to those pitiful fragments, was very fine. Every man of us, whether moved by religious conviction or not, felt the solemnity of the moment, and knelt to hear the words of forgiveness and of life.

I did not.

He asked for a wooden plank, and wadding his handkerchief into his fist, and gripping a nail, he drove it through the board. Then he drove two at once. When he is feeling fit he goes through more than one inch. He has offered to give a "Y" exhibition—"Y" is the army abbreviation for the Y. M. C. A. huts for soldiers—with such specialties as breaking a wagon axle over his neck by letting eight men hang on the axle, bending a gas pipe on his skull, lifting a man in a chair with two fingers, lifting a man and table with his teeth, drawing three motor cars full of people with his teeth, and lifting a man on a steel comb in his hair. He has gone by the name of the "Iron-Jaw King" in local exhibits at home. He is twenty-two years old and enlisted for the war with Mexico.

Just as Sandors was sailing for France a New York tough saw him in the street and thought he had met a harmless country boy (the one hundred and eighty pounds of fighting muscle are hidden in "cit's clothes").

"It was our last day in the United States," says Sandors, reminiscently. "I was thinking I'll never see God's country any more. I was thinking of something else and hit him good. I'm not the strongest man in the world, nothing like that. I'll just do the show for the soldiers, so they can have something new every once in a while. We used to loaf together. Now we are at war together. Well, I'll have to beat it. I'm on water call tonight."

A young marine of the Battalion of the ———— Marines is a professional boxer, stripping at 149½ pounds. He is the son of a horse breeding farmer in Missouri, who bred "Early Reaper, 2:09 flat," the boy explained.

"I've come four thousand miles to get a crack at the Germans," he added.

These boys are red faced, young with drive. One meets many boys, eighteen and nineteen years old, but the average age is about twenty-three.

"There's not a touch of 'blueness' among them," said J. H. Edwards, secretary of the hut at ——. "They're just boys, full-grown to be sure, but boys."

One man came into a hut and asked for a Spanish-American grammar. It turned out that this is his second enlistment. He first saw service in Porto Rico. You will find, now and again, a company of old timers, men who have been in service fifteen or twenty years. Sergeant Murphy, of the ——— Infantry, has served for twenty-six years — Cuba, the Philippines, all our brushes. These old time sergeants are the key of the army. They are on an equality with the men, but they understand discipline.

Speaking of the few thousand men whom I saw in this furthest advanced section of the army, the regulars number about 25 per cent, and the other three-quarters are volunteers who came in on the declaration of war. The regulars, with their experience, are well scattered among the newcomers, so as to give a foundation on which to build morale. The police sergeant of ———, with three gold teeth in his front upper jaw, which come out in a chilly smile, is another old timer. It is his duty to make the life of prisoners uncomfortable with hard work. Otherwise the boys would break rules and stay out after hours. He was speaking of the lumber shortage and the difficulty of getting any pine boards for the huts.

"I'm between fire and hot water myself," he said.

When the War Came to Texas.

A Texas man strolled into the hut where I was spending the night and began talking about his home and district. He lives thirty miles from Texarkana, and his hands were bunged up from his army work as "mule skinner." He told how the circulation of the local newspapers jumped as soon as war was declared.

"The people thought they might as well know about it as not," he explained.

"The Kaiser won't do," was his summary of Texas public opinion, and he explained why his state felt that way: "It's busting international law made our folks see the war—it was shooting the steamers."

I sat near a group of soldiers in the hut at ———. They had come in for a cake of chocolate and a smoke. The talk ran on to the new army life of the last six months.

"I'd give 'em a hundred dollars to send me back," said one.

"I don't want to go back till I see something," replied the man across the table.

"It's nicer to be over where you can savvy, where you can be with your own people," put in a third man. "Over here you have to make all kinds of movements to make them cough up."

"I came into the army to work," asserted a boy; "it makes a man out of you"

"It makes a growler out of most," replied an older man.

"Well, we've got to take it just as it comes," advised the philosopher of the group. "I'm getting all the money I need. Go back to the States and you'll not be satisfied. I'll take another good taste of the army. I've got a brother, getting on six years in the 12th cavalry, says it's the nicest life he ever lived."

The American turn is in their speech all the time — not only the charming Southern slur and the New England twang, but the little surprise in the wording itself. I was sitting next to a Louisville, Ky., man, and a camion driver came into the shack. The Southerner greeted him:

"I'm as glad to see you as I'd be to see my wife. And I haven't got any wife."

A few minutes later a man yelled:

"Where's Bob?"

A voice from the next shack answered:

"Here."

"Can't you hear him breathing?" asked the Southerner.

The Youth of a New Country.

These are all men whom I have met in our new army. I give their exact talk as it fell and the facts about their life history. This is America in the autumn of 1917 in the persons of her young volunteers. These men have come across willingly, even gladly, with a touch of adventure in their impulse and more than a touch of heroism. They are young with the youth of a new country. Curiosity is their mental attitude. They want to see great things, to play a part at a moment of history. Few of this advance army will ever see home again, for they will be first and longest in the trenches. But there is no foretaste of death in their jaunty attitude, their humorous talk, the vitality that survives drill and punishing hikes and turns to nine innings of baseball for recreation.

The core of the work out here is to give the men one place in each camp of the war zone where they can feel as free as in their own home towns, as free to write letters, play pool, sing songs, see Charley Chaplin on the screen. It is up to the American people to give their army these things—to give money freely to the "Y" huts, and to send experienced men, business men, men with glee club voices and good stories, to help in the work. Above all, the hut secretary must have a great human liking in his make-up, liking for all kinds of men. The men feel it in a minute and respond to it, but they steer clear of anything professional.

The "Y" has made a good start. Wherever the men are the huts are, and as fast as the men advance under the guns the hut and dug-out will go up with them. The voluntary helpers already over here, like Dr. Robert Freeman, of the big Presbyterian church of Pasadena, Calif., and Gerald Reynolds, the New York musician, are packing every hut they visit every evening. But the present year will see the need of hundreds of such leaders.

COMMUNICATION.

Bowling Green, Mo., Oct. 3. 1917.

Dear Friends of the Democrat-Forum:

I hope you are all prospering and enjoying the best of health. I am lonely here. The people are very nice to me, but new friends are not like old ones. I lived there 37 years ago Sept. 22, 1917. The people here are building a fine court house. I saw the Masons and Knights lay the cornerstone Sept. 13, and I enjoyed seeing the Grand Knights and Masons. With my best wishes to you, I close.

Spent $75,000 For Autos.

One hundred and fifteen cars—we may have missed a few—have been bought by people in Burlington Junction and vicinity during the last twelve months. The total amount paid for these cars will aggregate about $75,000 of real money.

One does not realize the amount paid in one year for cars until the sales are totaled. And add these to the large number of cars that were already here, many of them selling at the higher prices that prevailed three or four years ago, and the importance of the automobile, locally, can be realized.—Burlington Junction Post.

To Build Sale Pavilion.

The firm of F. C. Barber & Sons have let the contract for a new sale pavilion to be erected on the farm of W. F. Barber, 3¼ miles west of town.

This firm has had two successful sales of Shorthorn cattle and each was held in a rented tent, and in order that the bother and expense incident to procuring and erecting the tent be dispensed with the new permanent pavilion will be built to house future sales.

Owing to the fact that local contractors have all the work they can look after at the present time, the contract was awarded to Mose Hahn, a Maryville man. Mr. Hahn came over Friday and laid off the foundation.—Skidmore News.

There Is A Difference

Many people confuse the terms trustee, executor and administrator.

The administrator is appointed by the court to manage and settle the estate of a person who dies, leaving no will. This consists in collecting and paying debts, paying legacies and distributing the property among the heirs.

The executor is selected by any person making a will, to see that the terms of his will are carried out.

The trustee is appointed by the testator to hold property in trust or others until a designated time.

The Farmers Trust Co. acts as administrator, executor or trustee.

STATE HAS 144,465 AUTOS

License Receipts Total More Thon Half Million Dollars—Nodaway One of Leading Counties.

Jefferson City, Oct. 5.—Missouri has 144,465 automobile owners who have taken out licenses. There are 4,097 motorcycles, 16,887 chauffeurs and 1,341 dealers in automobiles.

License receipts this year total $591,069, an increase over the corresponding period last year of 160,337.50.

St. Louis is credited with 27,279 automobiles an increase over this time last year of 7,132, Kansas City has 16,649 an increase over last year of 3,698.

While the state law does not provide for county registration of automobile licenses, the license money going direct to the state, it is estimated that there are over 2,600 automobiles in the county. The last report from the state registration office some months ago gave the number at 2,300. Outside the counties in which there are large cities, Nodaway is one of the leading counties in the state in number of automobiles owned.

The Italian War Department employs 72,324 women, many of whom are used in digging trenches.

Cobalt (Can.), miners demand an increase of 50 cents a day.

Announces Birth of Twins.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Stafford are the proud parents of twin daughters, born to them Tuesday night at the home of Mrs. Stafford's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cal Suttle, southwest of Burlington Junction. Emmett is on his farm near Dwyer, Wyo., and was apprised of his new daughters by telegram yesterday. Each weighed 8½ pounds. — Burlington Junction Post.

Mail Carrier 16 Years.

Ben A. Jones began his 17th year as carrier on route 1 last week. Counting trips out for vacations and holidays Ben has traveled about 85,000 miles since he began carrying mail. The fact that he has worked this long on one route shows that his work is giving general satisfaction.—Burlington Junction Post.

Presbyterian W. M. S. Meeting.

Sixteen members and one visitor attended the Woman's Missionary society which met yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. A. Ford, on South Main street. Devotionals were led by Mrs. S. A. Colle. Miss Lucie Davis gave a talk on "The Present Day Conditions in Mormon Utah," Mrs. C. Edwin Wells gave a reading, and Mrs. A. N. Gray, who was also on the program, had for her subject, "The Organization, Officers and Committees of the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions." Mrs. Fred Yeomans conducted the roll call to prayer. Mrs. G. H. Colbert was chosen a delegate to the State Synodical convention, to be held next week in St. Joseph. After the program, was a social hour, during which the social committee, Mrs. C. A. Wadley, Mrs. O. L. Holmes and Mrs. Will Scott served refreshments.

For Mr. and Mrs. Riley.

When Mr. and Mrs. Oto Riley returned from a short honeymoon trip to the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Teson, last Saturday evening, they were welcomed by a number of their neighbors and friends. Among the number that were present and enjoyed the sumptuous supper that was served by Mrs. Teson were Mr. and Mrs. Oto Riley, Mrs. G. I. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Cottrell, Mrs. Kate Cottrell, Mr. and Mrs. Pearl Logan and family, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Winger and family, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Riley and family, Misses Agnes Hanley and Carrie Twaddell, Messrs. Celebrates Eightieth Birthday.

"Uncle" Samuel Corken was remembered by his many friends yesterday with a post card shower, the occasion being his eightieth birthday anniversary. Many cards were received, expressing the sentiment of his host of friends in this community, where he has lived fifty-seven years.

It was in 1860 that Mr. Corken came to Nodaway county. He and his good wife endured the hardships of the early pioneers and established the beautiful homestead southwest of town, which they left but a few years ago to make their home in Burlington Junction.

They have eight children, five of whom have remained in this community: Jas. Corken, who owns a farm joining the old homestead; T. A. Corken, president of the Northwestern bank; R. D. Corken, member of the Corken & Yaple hardware firm; E. E. Corken, proprietor of the Mineral Springs Sanitarium; Miss Mabel Corken, at home; Mrs. C. K. Allen of St. Joseph; Mrs. W. C. Urban of Stewartsville; Mrs. W. V. McKay, whose home is in California.

The Post joins Mr. Corken's many friends in wishing him happy returns of the day.—Burlington Junction Post.

Farewell Reception.

A farewell reception was given Chas. Cook at his home east of Hopkins Sunday, Charley going with others from here Wednesday to Camp Funston, Kan. A bountiful dinner was served and the day greatly enjoyed barring the sadness caused by the fact that so many of our boys must part with friends and home to take up arms, but all are hoping and expecting a safe return of most of them, all wishing Charley the best of luck and a safe return. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Nicholson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Eggers, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Oxley, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Oxley of Gravity, Ia., Mr. and Mrs. Wilford McAllister and family of New Market, Miss Florence McAllister, Lyons, Kan., Mr. and Mrs. Eber Collins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Harris and Thomas Harris, New Market, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Eggers and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Cook. In the evening several others called—Mr. and Mrs. James King, Mr. and Mrs. Hebron Sturgeon, Ruth Pistole, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Ulmer, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Eggers, Alice Manley, Ira Ringgold and Wilson Eggers of Sharpsburg, Ia.—Hopkins Journal.

W. R. C.

Maurine Kimberlin, a Normal student, went to Stanberry today to visit over Sunday with relatives.

The Ilinoy Heater

The air in an ILINOY HOME never becomes foul or stuffy. The ILINOY Air Circulating System causes a constant circulation of the air in the room. As soon as the air loses its vitality it is returned to the ILINOY, passed thru the heating system, heated, purified, and again sent out into the room. So the process continues night and day. This is why the air in an ILINOY HOME always seems so delightfully fresh and pure.

Relieved From Pain and Suffering by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N.Y.—"For three or four years I suffered a great deal of pain periodically, so I would have to lie down. My back would ache and I would feel very weak and miserable. I remembered how my mother had found relief from pain by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I decided to try it, and thanks to the Compound it helped me just as it did my mother, and I am free from pain, backache and that general weakness that was so hard to bear. I am able to do my work during such times and am recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my friends who suffer as I did."—Miss META TIEDEMANN, 1622 Jefferson Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

WHERE AMERICAN DOLLAR IS WORTH ONLY 28 CENTS.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Washington, Oct. 5. — All money sent from America for relief work in Syria is received and distributed, but the value of the dollar is often as low as twenty-eight cents, according to official information. Contrast with this the present purchasing power of money. Flour, according to the latest figures received, was selling for sixty cents a pound, while five pounds of molasses brought $3.20. An ordinary spool of thread costs sixty cents. The average day laborer is paid sixty cents a day in paper money.

Gets Write-up in Paper.

Lewis A. Denny of Maryville, agent for the Prudential Insurance company was written up in the Prudential Weekly Record of September 24. That paper says:

"Agent Lewis A. Denny of Maryville, Mo., detached from the St. Joseph district, was appointed April 26, 1915, and judging from the excellent progress shown this year, he is making good use of the experience which he has gained since his entry into the business. He is credited with a good Industrial record and has made exceptional progress in Ordinary. According to the latest report, his debit, amounting to $109, shows arrears of only$1.20, with advance payments of over $266."

MAKES LONG NIGHT DRIVE

Burlington Junction Minister Goes 160 Miles to Preach Funeral Sermon.

Rev. Ernest Snider, pastor of the Methodist church, had just finished his work of completing the minutes for the annual conference at Braymer last Friday afternoon, when he received a message of the funeral services of Mrs. White, which was held here Saturday forenoon, says the Burlington Junction Post.

Knowing that he could not drive the distance the next morning, and not caring to make another trip back to Braymer for his car, Mr. Snider, accompanied by Mrs. Snider, started for Burlington Junction that evening. The first forty miles they drove in mud but found better roads further on. Only one stop was made on the trip, when the pastor and his wife enjoyed a lunch of fried chicken which the good Methodist folks at Braymer had prepared for him.

Mr. Snider drove the 160 miles during the night, arriving in Burlington Junction at 6:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

PATTERN AFTER MISSOURI

Russia To Use State's Absentee Voting Law As Model For the New Republic.

Jefferson City, Oct. 5.—The new Russian republic will pattern its absent voting law after that of Missouri. Secretary Lansing has asked Governor Gardner that an outline of the Missouri law be wired to him in order that it can be sent to Russia. The secretary requested that the amendment made by the last General Assembly, permitting National Guardsmen of the state to send their votes to their homes, be quoted in full.

DARK DAYS FOR CAN RUSHERS.

Beer Brigade Pays More For Its Drink Now, Because of Tax.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—The "Good ship Rock and Rye floating down the Old Green River," has hit a snag. St. Louis today paid 20 cents for its whiskey over the bar and 15 cents a bottle for beer. The war tax bill just signed by President Wilson is the reason.

Soon there will be no more "Rush the Can brigade," saloon men say, as they will stop selling in buckets. The breweries are taxed an additional $1.50 a barrel under the new war measure and they have added 50 cents for themselves boosting it to $2. Whiskey has advanced 100 per cent, chiefly because of the law stopping its manufacture.

Mrs. John Tompson of Salt Lake City, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. B. E. Condon, and who went to Platte City to attend the wedding of her son, Warren Tompson and Miss Catherine Jane Wells, which took place Wednesday night, returned this morning to Maryville.

Jesse Miller, Jr., left today for Columbia, Mo., to visit with friends. He will be joined tomorrow by his father, Dr. Jesse Miller, Sr., who will accompany him to St. Louis where he will attend a dental college.

Misses Beulah Brunner and Mildred Miller will go to Sumner, Mo., to visit over Saturday and Sunday with relatives.

Mrs. Florence Staples left yesterday for Kansas City, where she will spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Ed Wiggins.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Claypool are moving from the W. A. Miller residence on South Main street to the J. E. James property on Park avenue.

TO CONFIRM A LARGE CLASS

Bishop Burke Coming Sunday to Administer Rites at St. Mary's Catholic Church.

The largest class in several years will attend confirmation services Sunday morning at nine o'clock at the St. Mary's Catholic church when fifty young people will be admitted to full privileges of the church. The Right Reverend Bishop Burke, of St. Joseph, will be here to administer the confirmation rites. He will be assisted by Rev. Father Odillo Schieber, of the St. Mary's Catholic church.

Following the confirmation services Bishop Burke will go to Clyde, where a large class will be confirmed in the afternoon.

THE BIGGEST GUSHER YET

Empire's New Strike Near Eldorado, Kansas, Flows 26,000 Barrels Daily.

Eldorado, Kan., Oct. 5.—The Empire Gas and Fuel company continued with their rich strikes in the Towanda section when they brought in a well yesterday estimated at twenty-six thousand barrels. It is on the Joshua Shriver land in the northeast corner of the northwest corner of 14-26-4.

Today at noon the well had been choked down considerably in order to prepare tankage. The Empire company is rushing men to the field to erect new tanks. Empire scouts coming from the field say it is even a bigger well than the Shumway, the Cardey or the Trapshooter's big gusher.. Oil men believe the famous Cushing field will be surpassed.

Kerensky May Resign?

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Premier Kerensky, the central figure of the turbulent political life of Russia since the revolution, has threatened to leave the government, according to a sensational article printed in the Retch. The Retch says the premier declared he would resign if the principles of the uniform cabinet of socialists exclusive of all other parties was forced upon him. Premier Kerensky favors the coalition of the cabinet.

Would Exonerate Stone.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

St. Paul, Oct. 5.—Resolutions will probably be laid before the senate this afternoon by the investigating committee which is under instructions to make its report on the first day of the next session opening in December, completely exonerating Senator Stone, chairman of the foreign relations committee from all charges of seditious obstruction made in demands for the removal of disloyal senators.

It'll Be No Draw, Says Pershing.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

American Headquarters in France, Oct. 5.—That the war will be fought out to a December victory for the Allies on the western front and that there will be no draw, was the opinion emphatically given by General Pershing in an interview today. The general also has the utmost confidence in a military victory for the Allies.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE HERE

Presbyterians in Campaign to Lift State Out of Dependent Home Mission Class.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—A $100,000 campaign to lift Missouri out of the dependent home missions class will be conducted by the Missouri Synod of the Presbyterian church, October 28 to November 18.

The campaign will commemorate the centennial of Presbyterianism west of the Mississippi river. Rev. Salmon Giddings crossed the Mississippi November 15, 1817 and organized the first Presbyterian church on this side of the river. It began with ten members.

A number of speakers and workers will assist in the work and conferences will be held in various cities throughout the state including these places:

Kansas City, Oct. 29-31; Maryville, Nov. 4-5; Kirksville, Nov. 6-7; Hannibal, Nov. 7-8; Moberly, Nov. 4-5 and several other cities.

Pickering M. E. Sunday School.

The following brief program will be rendered at the opening of Sunday school next Sunday morning: Solo, Mrs. Ernest Stafford; reading, Miss Genie Aley; instrumental duet, Misses Jessie and Nellie Clayton; solo, Miss Pauline Swinford. We urgently desire that every teacher ask every member of their class to be present Sunday morning. Let us make this a rally for larger attendance and see if we can reach the mark made last summer. Come promptly at 10 o'clock a. m., and bring some one with you.—J. W.. Wiley, Supt.

Strike on Southern Railroads.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Atlanta, Oct. 5.—The yards of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad and the Western Atlantic railroad were completely tied up here today by a strike of yard clerks and checkers. The strike is becoming general all along the line, according to advices received this morning. The strikers demand increased wages and the right to organize.

French Airmen Bomb German Cities.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

The Hague, Oct. 5.—Serious damage has been inflicted on the German cities of Frankfort-on-the-Main and Stuttgart by French airmen, according to advices from the frontier today. Both cities contain many noted buildings, especially Stuttgart. At Frankfort a bomb fell on one of the great bridges that span the main river.

No Fixed Price For Seed Wheat.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Jefferson City, Oct. 5.—The secretary of the state department of agriculture received word from Mr. Hoover that the farmers may sell wheat for seed at any price they can get regardless of the price agreed upon by the government. Elevators may also sell at not to exceed fifteen per cent increase over the government price of $2.20.

Is An Old Offender.

Chas. Womack, convicted yesterday in police court on a charge of violating the local option law and assessed a fine of $300 remains in jail with the fine unpaid. An investigation of Womack's record, made by Mayor A. S. Robey, showed that Womack has been convicted four different times in the circuit court for similar offenses.

Theodore Wenrick, who was recently up in juvenile court will be sent back to St. Joseph where he is a ward of the juvenile court of Buchanan county. The young boy has been working for J. L. Partridge and was caught stealing some money there.

Germans to Strike on Water.

Petrograd, Oct. 5.—Positive information has been received here that the Germans are preparing to strike a big naval blow in the Baltic.

BE SAVING OF GASOLINE

Motorists Urged to Aid in Conserving the Supply — Government Demand Is Large.

Conservation is the word of the hour. Thoughtful people are practicing it. Americans are known the world over as an extravagant nation. Perhaps they have been and may still be. There is, however, such a thing as carrying the conservation propaganda too far.

With the entrance of this country into war and the almost universal adoption by the government of the internal explosive engine for every purpose that it can be used, the consumption of gasoline has jumped enormously. There are those who claim that due to the enormous amount of this fuel that the government will need added to the fact that it is being used today faster than produced, pleasure car riding should be forsaken for the period of the war.

There is no need of this. Men in a position to know, oil men and government experts state that there will be ample supply for all if they will be but a little more careful in its use. On the part of these men there is no desire to see the two million and odd passenger automobiles in the country tied up.

They claim that by following a few simple rules given below that not only will a vast amount of fuel be conserved but that owners will at the same time derive a greater benefit from their cars at less expense. The rules as formulated by them and indorsed by some of the best known engineers of motor construction and operation are:

Carbureter adjustment is of prime importance. A mixture that is too rich or too lean will cause more gasoline to be used in performing a given amount of labor, than a correct mixture. But don't attempt to adjust your carburetor unless you know how.

Most cars have what may be termed an economical speed. It ranges from 12 to 20 miles per hour. When you get above that speed, the amount of gas used per mile increases.

Anticipate slowing up and stops. Close the throttle and disengage the clutch far enough ahead of the place you want to stop so that very little use of the brake will be necessary. Whenever you use the brakes you destroy momentum that has required gasoline to create.

Accelerate gradually. It takes less gas to do that than to reach a fast gait quickly.

Whenever you allow the engine to run with the car standing, you are using up gas that doesn't make any showing on your odometer.

See that the brakes are properly adjusted. Tight brakes cause friction and friction takes power, and hence gasoline, to overcome.

Good lubricating oil is also essential to gasoline economy.

Finally, tires should be properly inflated. Soft tires drag and require more power to propel the can than tires containing correct air pressure.

TRAVEL 700 MILES TO CONVICT ONE SLACKER.

Special to The Democrat-Forum.

Grand Junction, Colo., Oct. 5.—It is costing Uncle Sam real money to round up slackers who failed to register under the draft law, and Colorado can lay claim to a record in expenditure of time and money to convict one man.

To accept the plea of guilty of William Robinson, a miner, arrested here as a slacker, United States District Judge Lewis, his clerk of courts, Charles W. Bishop, United States District Attorney Harry B. Tredrow and United States Marshal Samuel J. Burris had to spend two days traveling 700 miles from Denver to this city.

Robinson's was the only case on the docket and required but fifteen minutes for disposal.

Joseph Farmer left yesterday for Minneapolis, Minn., where he will attend school.

Now Is a Good Time To Treat Your Catarrh

Mild weather aid treatment.

Don't be misled into thinking that your Catarrh is gone. The first touch of winter weather will bring it back with all its discomforts.

But this is an excellent time to thoroughly cleanse the blood of the germs of Catarrh, and be forever rid of the troublesome sprays and douches that can never cure you.

S. S. S., the great blood purifier, searches out the germs of Catarrh which infest your blood, and chases them entirely out of your system. It is by far the most satisfactory treatment for the disease, because it reaches down to its very roots and gets at the cause. Write to-day for full information, and expert medical advice regarding the treatment of your own case. Take advantage of this chance to-day. Address Swift Specific Co., Dept. G Atlanta, Ga.
